

I Can...

Behavioral Sciences

- analyze how various ideas and changes impact political and social institutions.
- evaluate the impact of gender roles throughout history.

Civics/Government

- assess the impact of gender roles in the United States.

Economics

- examine labor and governmental efforts to reform and maintain a capitalistic economic system.

Financial Literacy

- understand how to set financial goals to complete a budget and plan for the future.
- understand concepts related to loans and credit to assist in avoiding financial hardship in the future.

Geography

- explain the effects of immigration and migration on social, political, and economic structures within the United States.
- analyze changing roles within the United States to do war and imperialism.

History

- evaluate the impact of inventions and technology on American society.
- critique various primary and secondary sources of information to better understand United States History.
- determine multiple causes and effects of historical events in American History.